DANIELS TAKES LABOR PARTY LEAD

The Labor Party's most successful-ever Federal election candidate for Ryan, Ross Daniels, will spearhead Labor's local machine, in the run-up to the next election.

Mr Daniels was yesterday elected President of the ALP's Ryan Federal Electorate Council and will coordinate Labor's bid to win the seat at the next Federal election, expected in late 2010.

In the 2007 Federal Election Mr Daniels gained 46.2% of the two-party preferred vote, to turn the one-time Liberal stronghold into a marginal seat requiring a swing of just 3.8% to return a Labor member.

"Voters in Ryan are very attracted to the progressive and intelligent nation-building policies of Labor Prime Minister Kevin Rudd and his government.

"At the next Federal election I want those voters to have every opportunity to demonstrate their approval of the government's sensible approach to the challenges facing Australia and the world.

"As Ryan FEC President I will increase Labor's presence in Ryan by expanding the Party's networks and membership, and make sure we remain firmly based in the community by providing every opportunity for the community to talk with us."

Mr Daniels, a Queensland University of Technology Lecturer who lives in The Gap with his wife and children, was elected unopposed as President for the next year.

Labor has not yet selected a candidate for the next Federal election, as electoral boundaries will be moved to accommodate an extra seat somewhere in the state.
